 Rome, Feb. 15.—(On the occasion of the proclamation of the constitution of the Society of Nations, King Victor Emmanuel will sign a liberal decree of military and political amnesty, it is announced here.)

AMUSEMENTS

GRAND.
With vivid insight, first-hand knowledge and delightful humor, Frederick Irving Anderson dashed off "The Golden Fleece," picturing the shearing of the innocents for Saturday Evening Post readers. It is the tale of a young try genius who hits upon the Big Idea, "Build Your Own Car," a knockdown auto proposition.
You cannot afford to miss this picturization of one of the most successful short stories ever run by the Saturday Evening Post. It's a pipkin. In the cast are some of Triangle's finest characters, among whom may be seen Jack Curtis, Joe Bennett, Harvey Clark, Graham Pette and Peggy Pearce.

of very cold water the other day to astonish the director with the remark that scene had been the most enjoyable of the entire picture. It was during the hot wave which swept New York while the little star was filming "Say, Young Fellow," a Paramount picture, which is to be shown at the Gem theatre on Monday.
AUDITORIUM.
"Say, Young Fellow."
Optimism of the Fairbanks brand is the keynote of the story of "Say, Young Fellow," the latest Arctcraft photoplay in which Douglas Fairbanks is being seen at the Auditorium. Aside from its novelty, the theme of this

Four of the biggest stars in the photoplay world have joined together in the biggest organization in filmdom and this photograph shows them signing the papers. This combination has been rumored for some time and now it is an established fact. The name of the organization is the United Artists' Corporation. Its purpose is to prevent the formation by distributors of a trust which would tend to commercialize their pictures, to make it possible for the "big four," Chaplin, Pickford, Fairbanks and Griffith, to distribute their own pictures. William G. McAdoo is the general counsel for this organization. Bill Hart was considered, but owing to the fact that he will either retire or accept a proposition of working for a flat salary he decided not to join the stars. The main office of the corporation will be in New York, where the details of the distributing end of the company will be worked out under McAdoo's direction.

The main office of the corporation will be in New York, where the details of the distributing end of the company will be worked out under McAdoo's direction.

A screamingly funny scene in "Charley's Aunt," the jolly comedy with music, which comes to the Auditorium Thursday, Feb. 20, with popular bargain matinee.
The Grand theatre will run "The Golden Fleece" on Sunday and Monday.

LYRIC.
DeVoe's Dainty Darlings.
Mr. DeVoe's show has pleased everyone who witnessed any of his performances. "Anthony and Cleopatra," a comedy bill, is written especially to please every one. Mr. DeVoe proves that besides being an excellent straight man, that he also is a good comedian. Miss DeVoe as leading lady handles her part well.

Next Week.
Beginning Monday, Rub Fulkerson and his Ginger Girls will open a two weeks' engagement, giving the usual change of program weekly. The opening bill will be a revival farce comedy, "Down on the Farm." Mr. Fulkerson promises Newark theatregoers the best company he has ever had, producing bills never seen at the Lyric before, with extra vaudeville specialties each night. Monday night will be the biggest surprise the patrons of the Lyric have ever seen. Hear Mr. Harry Fulton the Welsh baritone in popular songs, and the Harmony Jazz trio.

GEM.
Monday.
Strangling, gasping and dripping from every fold of her expensive and once-beautiful ball gown, dainty Marguerite Clark emerged from a bathtub splendid picture is of the quality, that cheers and invigorates one's jaded spirit as wine cheers the parched wayfarer under a verticle sun on the arid desert. Anyone who has met a newspaper reporter such as is portrayed by Mr. Fairbanks in this picture, doubtless will have an entirely new conception of the genus reportorial. This "young fellow" is a smiling chap, witty, resourceful, a staunch optimist, an athlete of the first class, and a chap who refuses to give way to discouragement because things don't go just as he expected they would.

The last screenings are given tonight.

"Creaking Stairs."
How often have you heard a photographer complain that he has failed in getting a sufficient "contrasting negative?" A similar expression was used by Rupert Julian when that director was working on "Creaking Stairs," the new Mary MacLaren production coming to the Auditorium tomorrow.

It was during the filming of a weird portion of the cinema, "Dearie" Lane's past had come up to confront her in the person of her former "patron." He expires of heart failure in "Dearie's" home, and, with the aid of a negro maid, the girl-wife takes the body and deposits it in a deserted place.
Now, Miss MacLaren is noted for her exquisite complexion, which is of cameo-like cast and great purity of color. The colored woman necessarily must be very dark to afford proper contrast in bringing out the desired effect of terror. Miss MacLaren suggested

"The Forbidden City."
One of the prettiest Chinese stories ever produced for the screen is Select Pictures Corporation, "The Forbidden City," in which Norma Talmadge is presented in the dual role of "San San" and "Toy" by Joseph M. Schenck. "The Forbidden City" comes to the Auditorium Monday and Tuesday.
In old China the currying of the emperor's favor by the Mandarins was equal to the state of petty politics that existed in the court of Louis XIV of France. Wong Li was the father of the beautiful San San. The two had been banished and were living in a remote section of the country, while Wong Li eked out a bare existence giving lessons in Chinese to foreign students. Thus it came about that San San made the acquaintance of John Worden, a young American attached to the U. S. Consular depot. The old mandarin grew fond of the brilliant young American until he discovered that his daughter and Worden had been secretly married. When Worden returned from a short trip he found that Wong Li and San San had disappeared. New Pathe News will be an added feature.

"Charley's Aunt."
The laugh play of two generations, genial, jovial, musical "Charley's Aunt," comes to the Auditorium next Thursday afternoon and evening, under the direction of Miller & Elser, late of the "Twin Beds" management. This laugh festival distinguishes itself from the majority of comedies with music, by the wholesomeness of its story, the rapidity of its action, the wit and breeziness of its lines and the deftness of its characterization. It is simply impossible not to laugh at "Charley's Aunt," there is no getting away from it, people actually roar and shout. Description of the comedy would convey but a feeble idea of the complications which are unwound in the course of the three acts. Theatres ring with happy laughter and catch words from "Charley's Aunt" are heard in every quarter.
Seats for this attraction go on sale

Tuesday morning. A popular matinee will be given Thursday afternoon.

ALHAMBRA.
"Five Nights."
Large crowds yesterday flocked to the Alhambra where Victoria Cross' famous photoplay, "Five Nights" is being screened. Miss Cross is remembered by her "Life's Shop Window," it, at the time being one of the sensations of look readers and millions of copies were read and sold. Now her "Five Nights" bids fair to rival the other. It will be screened tonight for the last time and is seen together with Charlie Chaplin, who is appearing in a return engagement of "Shoulder Arms."

Dustin Farnum.
Manager Fenberg announces a special feature for the Alhambra for next Monday and Tuesday in The United Theatres of America picture, "The Light of Western Stars" in which Dustin Farnum is the star. This is a Zane Grey story and in the cast besides the star, is seen Winifred Kingston, Bart Apple, Joseph Swickard, Virginia Ames, Charles Rogers, Jeanie Muddock, Frank Clark, Eddie Hearn, Gordon Crane, Lou Poff, George Cummings, Sam Apple, George Fields and others.
The story tells of Gene Stewart, a wild but popular cowboy of the South-western border makes a reckless wager that he will marry the first girl who comes to the little town.

That night he sees a pretty girl alight from a train from the East. She is unattended, her telegram of arrival having gone astray. Stewart drags a padre to the depot and forces him at the point of a gun to start the marriage. Midway through its reading Stewart is sobered and horrified to find that the girl is Majesty Hammond, sister of the rancher for whom he himself is foreman. He stops the ceremony and conducts Majesty to her brother's house.
Majesty magnanimously regards the fair as a cowboy escapade and decides to say nothing of it to her brother, but

Chicago Grain.
Chicago, Feb. 15.—Wheat—buying on the market of wheat with eastern connections sent the corn market upgrade today after some display of weakness at outset. Changes in the oats market depended on the action of corn. After opening 1 1/2c to 7 3/8c lower, the market for oats was steady and some of the further and then scored a moderate gain.
Lower prices on hogs weakened provisions. Something of a rally took place, however, when strength developed in corn.

For ten years I suffered severely from indigestion and constipation. I treated with different doctors, took other medicines but received only temporary relief and gradually grew weaker.

A friend recommended Dr. Parker's Treatment. The first box gave relief. A few boxes cured me.

I gladly recommend Dr. Parker's Treatment, believing it will cure the worst case of indigestion.

Dr. Parker guarantees this treatment. If a $1 box doesn't do all you expect of it, he will refund your money promptly. Your good judgment tells you he could not do this if the treatment was not always successful. It is the result of his thirty-five years' study of indigestion, and it has proved its value so thoroughly that you should go to any drug store, get a box, and start toward getting well, for you need not suffer any more.

TELLS HOW HUN WOMEN PREPARE FOR CHRISTMAS

Artillery Boys Exchange Gifts and Eat Christmas Dinner With Fox Families.

Boys with Battery D, 324th, had a regular merry Christmas in Germany with snow, cedar trees, exchanging gifts with the German families, a tramp through the woods, an entertainment of their own in the evening—and every thing.

The German women were busy all day before Christmas baking, etc. The baking is done in a community oven and carried back and forth. Cedar trees are brought right from the woods and delivered to the houses. James E. Slocomb, bugler with Battery D, wrote the following letter to his parents, telling how they spent Christmas. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Slocomb of Hebron and a grandson of Isaac Slocomb, a veteran of the civil war, who served in the 113th Reg. O. V. I.

We had a nice time Christmas, considering the time place and conditions. Of course all of us would have liked to have been home, but as there was nothing doing in that direction, we made the best of what we could get here. We had thought up until the 20th that we might be in the states by Christmas. We have heard so many different rumors about going home that we don't believe anything we hear now. And I don't think we will believe we are going home until we see our land ship and sailing out of the harbor.

"I was on duty the day before Christmas and had the pleasure of being on duty on Christmas eve. The people here were as busy as bees all day and late into the night. They have a community oven where they do their baking. All day the women were busy carrying large pans of bread, cakes, etc., to the oven to be baked. One of the men went out and brought in a load of cedar trees and distributed them around to all the houses. Christmas trees are one of the things that these people are not short on, for I have seen hundreds of acres of pine and cedar, ranging from two inches to 50 feet in height. In the evening everyone was busy trimming a tree for the kiddies and decorating the rooms.

"We were not out about what we were going to eat. Our supplies did not come in until evening. Then the news got around that breakfast would be our turkey.

"Christmas morning. The first thing we heard was the church bells ringing. When we did get up we found that it had snowed during the night. Everything was covered with about three inches of snow. It was a real genuine Christmas morning. The town, surrounded by hills, with their snow-clad pines, and the misty air, made one think that mistle had placed a huge frosted glass dome over you. It certainly made a beautiful picture.

"When we fell out for roll call we found that the Y. M. C. A. had played Santa Claus and brought us some Christmas packages. Each man received a pack of cookies and a box containing a tin of Tuxedo tobacco, a pack of cigarettes in a tin of chocolate. On the box was printed 'Merry Christmas from the folks at home; Christmas from the Y. M. C. A.' Well, that made me feel like a king.

"After breakfast we were cleaning up our billets when one of the boys came in with a present from the officers of our battery. They gave each of us a package of cakes and cigarettes, and a bar of chocolate. The mercury went up above freezing and we began to thaw out a little. It wasn't going to be such a bad Christmas after all.

Then the lady in whose house I am billeted sent one of the little girls up with a plate of sweet bread she had baked for Christmas. There are 16 of us and there was a nice slice for each one. It was up to us to return the compliment but were up against a tough proposition, as none of us had done any Christmas shopping. But we all chipped in and filled the plate with cakes, cigarettes, cigars, tobacco and some Colgate's toilet soap. (Soap is a scarce article among the people here.) One of the boys took it down and left it on the table.

"Most of the boys spent the morning cleaning up. Some went to church with the villagers and others went for a walk through the woods to work up a good appetite for dinner. I was one of them.

"Corporal Prosser and I took a stroll over towards our pocket line to see whether we could find a deer or rabbit. There are lots of deer around this neighborhood, the boys having seen several since we came here. But we are not allowed to go hunting. The only persons allowed to shoot deer are the German foresters, although I understand several have mysteriously entered the town.

"We didn't go far until we saw plenty of deer tracks, but we didn't follow any trails because we didn't have our guns, and not being allowed to hunt, the guns wouldn't have done us any good. After we entered the woods we picked up a rabbit track and started to follow it for the fun of seeing one of these big hares. After we had followed it awhile Prosser said: 'This looks fresh. You stay here and I'll follow the track and maybe he'll circle and come back.' So I waited, and it wasn't long until I heard something coming up through the woods. I was standing in a bunch of bush saplings and couldn't see very good, and I thought at first it was a young shepherd dog coming up through the brush. I stood still and it stopped about forty feet from me. I was expecting to see a big rabbit but it was as large as that. He would have weighed 25 pounds, I believe. His ears were about eight inches long and the print of his hind feet were about five times as large as one of our rabbits. His fur was a sort of reddish brown, and when he sat up he looked to be about two and a half feet tall. I watched him until he heard Prosser coming and then he beat it.

"Then Prosser waited and I started after him, so that he could get a squirt at him. But the boy was getting fussy and started to doubling back on me. That made it slow tracking. He led me a merry chase and finally lost me in a pine grove where there were lots of bare ground, and as I was nearing dinner time I called to Prosser and we came back to camp. Now this isn't a fish story. It is straight dope.

"When we got back dinner was ready, (and so were we.) We had steak, mashed potatoes, gravy, cold slaw, bread and coffee and plenty of it.

"In the afternoon the mail came in and some of the boys got Christmas packages from home. I got four magazines and a lot of Advocates, so most of us sat around and read, smoked, and ate chocolate and some coffee cake the lady of the house sent us. Now after dinner, in the evening we got some chocolate bonbons from the government.

"We also had a home talent entertainment in the school house Christmas night. An orchestra from the band came over to furnish music and the boys did the rest. The battalion detail favored us with some original songs, and a chorus from our own battery did a little 'improvising.' George Thompson and Everett Carner performed on the guitar and mandolin. Lieutenant Schmidt gave us some ragtime and solo selections, and we wound up with a 'grand chorus' with everybody singing. Lieut. (Patty Arbuckle) Cunningham was the 'announcer and emcee' of the program. He was in charge of the evening's program. He has promised us a real show for New Year's. So you see we had a merry Christmas after all.

"We were all given an insignia for our last arm—a scarlet bar with a scabbard across it, the arrow pointing upward. The bar represents the Hindenburg line and the arrow our division that went through. Right nifty, don't you think?"

DETAILS OF BATTERY'S TRAVELS GIVEN IN LETTER

Private Vincent Sheets is the "Pershing's March to the Rhine" with Battery B, 324th.

Since the censorship restrictions have been modified the boys are now able to write detailed accounts of their travels to their families and friends.

Private Sheets wrote the following interesting letter on November 24th to his father Charles Sheets of Hebron, when they were five miles from German soil.

"As they have removed many of the restrictions of censorship since the war was ended I am now able to write and tell you of some of the battles we have been through and other things of interest. To begin with we left New York, June 12 on board S. S. Leicestershire and landed at Liverpool, England, on June 23. We came through England and took a channel vessel South Ampton for Leflavre, France and landed there June 28.

We were then sent to camp in southern and western France about 50 miles southwest of Rennes where we remained until September 24th, when we loaded on a train with all our equipment and were sent to the battle line where we have been ever since.

The sector where we fought was about 10 miles north of Verdun and those battles you read of around and east of the Meuse river we participated in, which was the strongest front on the line and was held by the Germans with the Prussian guards, the flower of Kaiser Bill's army. We fought 19 days in October, before we were able to break the German resistance there, but when she did break it was a total rout which led to the armistice of November 11. The German army has collapsed entirely and we are now following them up to the Rhine river, which they agreed in the armistice to retire. They have passed out of France through Belgium and the Dutchy of Luxembourg and are now only 5 miles from German soil. We are in 'Pershing's March to the Rhine' and the people who have suffered for four years under the heel of the Hun give us a warm welcome and hail us as conquerors and deliverers from their oppressors. We are on the move nearly all the time and hope to keep that way until we reach that grand old place called the U. S. A.

I am in the best of health and also of spirit. We no longer hear the whizz of bullets or bursting shells and the roar of German cannon is fast becoming history. We now pass along the fine rural roads like one mighty circus parade with our columns mile after mile long."
